I really enjoyed this book. The characters were interesting and the story line was good. I couldn't Put this book down.

Jaya Martinson and her partner, Jeffries were officers with Miami PD. When they responded to a domestic violence call, things quickly went out of control leaving her with two gunshot wounds and her partner in a wheelchair. She is filled with grief and decides to leave her job and return home to Chicago to heal from the wounds, both physically and emotionally. And just when she thinks things can't get any worse, she runs into Colt Sharpe, her ex boyfriend. Colt, former Navy SEAL, is now the owner of a successful security firm. His life looks ideal on the outside but on the inside he is harboring the loss of the girl he has loved all of his life. They had a future ahead of them. They were meant for each other but things went sideways and neither of them understands why. When he left for the Navy, she was left grieving, confused and filled with doubt. To say things are complicated is an understatement. Colt is trying to reconnect with Jaya. He takes her to his office to show her around and then manages to persuade her to take a position with his company. According to him, it would be perfect for her...the position requires someone who is "organized, borderline anal retentive, bossy as hell and will do whatever it takes to get stuff done." (I am LOL - seriously, can you imagine a man looking for a woman with these characteristics?) . She agrees to take the position but not before locking her feelings and heart away so she won't be subjected to more pain and heartache... Ahhh...the best laid plans don't always follow our wishes. Both of these beautiful people are filled with doubt and regrets but one thing is for sure, they can't change the past but are they willing to take a chance on the future? Let's hope so because you will want this for these two souls who are so filled with heartache and regrets it's time for some change so they can move forward, however things work out. The book is a quick read and will keep the reader engaged and at times a bit confused because you will have questions but hang in there, you will get answers. I really liked this book and as a recipient of an advanced copy of the book and pleased to be able to give the author my unbiased rating of 5 stars...she deserves it.

I really enjoyed the story of Jaya and Colt. They had a history together from when they were in college. One day Colt up and left to join the Navy Seals without any explanation to Jaya. It broke her heart and she's went through a lot after Colt left and he wasn't there when she needed him the most. Fast forward years later when Jaya winds up back home after being shot on the job and runs into her old flame... Colt. But Jaya doesn't want anything to do with him now. She's carrying some heavy emotional events that she just can't get over and Colt is at the center of it. Colt however feels totally different towards Jaya and wants nothing other than to get her back into his life, and underneath his body once again. He knows he messed up with her in the past by just up and leaving to join the Navy, but can't figure out just why she's so pissed at him and can't stand to be around him. Is there something he's missing? Can they get past the events that happened in the past so they can move on to be with one another once again? Deep down Jaya's still in love with Colt and even though her head tells her that she shouldn't let him in, her heart can't help but start to fall for him all over again. But she can never forgive him for what he did. Can she? I really enjoyed this book and will keep Piper Sullivan on my list of authors TBR list. This book made you feel all different kinds of emotions and you really pull for Jaya and Colt to figure out their differences so they can move past them and be together. I'm not gonna say any more, other than give this book a shot, it's worth the read! I received an ARC of this book in exchange for an honest review.

This is like the 2nd book I've read from Piper Sullivan,,, I think I am beginning to like what I'm reading more and more,, This is a cute second chance type of story,,, High School sweethearts that ended very badly,,, Jaya Martinson was a Miami cop and a domestic went down one night, Jaya and her partner, Detective Greg Jeffries were the ones to respond ,,, a guy was holding his woman at gunpoint first at her, next thing you know, he has her as a hostage, with a gun to her as a way out... Jaya's partner came around back,,, the just of it is, her partner got shot, bad,,, the hostage came at Jaya, in turn shooting the hostge,,, her partner lived, and she couldn't do this in Miami anymore. With a shoulder injury, from the bullet she took, she made her way home,,,,, to Chicago,,, Colt Sharpe whom was an ex SEAL, although they say there is no such thing as an ex SEAL, ,,, he did like 3 hours of duty and now is home, in Chicago, had started his own security company with a few people he could really trust,,, they have made quite a bit of money and the business was worth serious money, but his life was still not what if where he wanted it to be,,, not without HER.....Buy this book, and travel along with Colt and Jaya as she keeps quiet, although, she wanted to scream and holler at Colt,,, answering all the painful questions she had, after they graduated. They seemed so happy, and in love with each other,,, so, why did he enlist and why didn't he give her time to say goodbye,,, to tell him what he so needed to tell him,,,,, but,,, he was gone,,, and she needed to carry on, without him,,,,she would never forgive him,,, or would she,,,???
